

Biography

Jason Sniffen, DO
Infectious Diseases, Undersea and Hyperbaric
Medicine

Dr. Sniffen has practiced infectious disease medicine in the Orlando area since 2001. He is the current President of Infectious Disease Consultants, one of the busiest infectious disease practices in the United States. After completing his fellowship training in infectious diseases at the University of South Florida College of Medicine in Tampa, Dr. Sniffen relocated to Orlando, but continues to work as a Clinical Assistant Professor in the Department of Infectious Diseases at the USF school. Additionally, he regularly teaches medical residents from the Florida Hospital healthcare system's many training programs and medical students from Nova Southeastern University. Dr. Sniffen is Board Certified in Infectious Diseases, Internal Medicine and was the first DO internist in the country to receive board certification from the Undersea and Hyperbaric Medicine Society.

Education

- Medical School – Nova Southeastern University Fort Myers
- Residency – Rowan University School of Osteopathic Medicine
- Fellowship – University of South Florida

Board Certification

- Infectious Disease: American Osteopathic Board of Internal Medicine